Weston's products include fancy sweet biscuits, assorted sweet biscuits, chocolate-coated biscuits, ginger nut snaps, soda wafers, family-size sodas, shelf-tin sodas, golden brown sodas, crush-wheat sodas, crackerettes, wafers, fancy sweet, arrowroot, etc.

GOLF! GOLF!!

The Lethbridge golfers will be making their postponed trip to Blairmore this coming Sunday. Rainy weather and bad roads held up the competition on Sunday last. Eighteen men and eight ladies are expected.

The ladies will hold a nine-hole competition tomorrow (Saturday) at 2.30, and on next Wednesday the regular mixed foursomes will be held, at 2 p.m. instead of 2.30. The draw will take place at the clubhouse as soon as members arrive.

Becher Wilson entered the hall of fame on Wednesday, when he placed his spoon shot in the hole at the 8th tee. This is the second time that the sporty short hole has been made in one, the first being by Harold McPhail.

A civil action brought against the Coleman School District for damages alleged to have been suffered by a lad named Fleming, was dismissed. It was alleged that the lad was hit in the eye by an eraser thrown by another student while the teacher was absent from the room.

DONALD HEINS

One of Canada's outstanding musicians, who will conduct the Toronto Conservatory of Music mid-summer examinations in Blairmore on June 20th. Mr. Heins organized and conducted the Ottawa Symphony Orchestra before joining the faculty of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. At present he is assistant conductor to Sir Ernest MacMillan in the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, and is well known to radio audiences as a program director for the Canadian Radio Commission.

DR. DONALD HEINS TO CONDUCT EXAMINATIONS

For 34 years one of the outstanding musicians and composers in Canada has been Donald Heins, who will conduct the mid-summer examinations of the Toronto Conservatory of Music in Blairmore on June 20th.

Mr. Heins comes of an English family, which has produced some noted musicians. His father, Nicholas Heins, organist, singer and composer, was for some years tenor soloist at Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, Windsor. Mr. Heins was born in Hereford, England, and began his violin studies at the age of four. When only 14, he entered the Royal Conservatorium at Leipzig, where for five years he studied the violin under Hans Sitt and composition under Eustav Shreck. At the final examination he played a sonata of his own composition for violin and piano.

On his return to England, he continued his studies for four years in London under August Wilhelm, during which time he was the concertmaster of an orchestra of 100 players, under Sir Hubert Parry, Sir Edward Elgar, Sir Charles Stanford and other noted conductors.

In 1902, Mr. Heins left England for Canada, and settled in Ottawa, where he remained for nearly 25 years. During that time he successfully established and conducted the Ottawa Symphony Orchestra, was honored with the appointment to instruct Princess Patricia in her musical studies and organized classes in violin for the public schools.

He left Ottawa in the spring of 1927 to join the faculty of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. As leading violinist and assistant conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Heins has become a popular figure in the public eye.

He has also contributed to music throughout Canada by his direction and arrangement of programs for the Canadian Radio Commission.

BRUCE BATTALION REUNION AND OLD HOME WEEK

The 160th Bruce Battalion will hold a reunion and old home week in Wainwright, Ontario, June 29th to 30th and July 1st, 1936. A good program of sports is planned, sea races, water sports, softball, football and horse shoe pitching tournaments, big midway, thrilling circus acts, clown band, brass bands, pipe band, parades, something doing all the time. Wainwright offers the visitor good fishing, trolling for lake trout, boat rides, bathing, golf, tennis, bowling.

HILLCREST FISH CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The Hillcrest Fish and Game Association held their annual meeting and smoker on Friday night last, at which the entire list of officers, with exception of the secretary-treasurer, were re-elected. Mr. Hollinger was chosen to succeed the retiring secretary-treasurer. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. A. M. Wainwright for his valued services to the club since its inception several years ago. Prizes won last season were presented to Pete Mathus (cup) for largest speckled trout; E. R. D'Ercole for largest bull trout; Ed. Gausling for largest grayling. J. Mackie was winner of the Union prize. Following the meeting, a splendid programme of speeches, vocal and instrumental music, etc., was rendered. Representatives were present from Bellevue and Blairmore.

The cup, won by Pete Mathus, is on display in the window of Crows' Nest Pass Motors, Blairmore.

CHURCH CONFERENCE RAPIDS INCREASED TAXES

The United church conference in provincial session at Edmonton, viewed with misgiving the largely increased taxation, and decreased social services. Reduced purchasing power entailed by new tax would add to the trials of these least able to bear them. "It is unfair to tax the very shoes children must wear," said one minister. The conference accepted and passed the resolution offered by committee, expressing "disapproval of such increased imposts and decreased services by both the federal and provincial governments."

Opposition to the use of Sundays "for partisan political propaganda" was expressed by conference, reaffirming its stand of last year and holding that "the other six days of the week are sufficient for the promotion of the partisan interests and party political controversy."

That the age at which persons shall be eligible for pensions should be lowered to 65 years was another recommendation passed by conference, this action to be taken as soon as practicable.—Ex.

April 26.—The town council has started to retrench by cutting off street lights.

A meeting of the Presbyterians and Methodists of the Central Union church congregation was held on Tuesday night. The only obstacle to the present working of the union experiment was stated to be the separate Sunday schools, and an effort will be made to combine the three. It was decided to extend an invitation to Rev. W. T. Young, of the Frank Methodist church, to become pastor of Central Union church for about a year under the supervision of the Macleod Presbytery. Mr. Young has stated his willingness to accept.

Fred Chappell has severed his connection with the Bellevue Mercantile Co.

J. E. Gillis has moved into his new offices at the corner of Eighth Avenue and Victoria Street.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

This year railway air service will fly 1,000,000 miles on inland routes in Britain as compared with 600,000 miles in 1934.

The United States senate passed the $2,248,000,000 deficiency bill carrying in its appropriations for next year's relief program.

Under a new treaty Ireland will ship meat, butter, horses, wool, hides and other products to Germany in exchange for manufactured goods.

J. E. L. Graham of Weyburn, Sask., student of University college, was awarded the fourth year gold medal in political science, it was announced by University of Toronto officials.

Conservation of tin cans as part of the German nation's raw materials resources has become obligatory with the navy, the supreme naval command decreed.

Successful experiments in the revival of children's hearts after death were reported by Dr. N. Ostrovsky, of the Moscow Medical Institute.

Sir Allen B. Aylesworth, Liberal member of the senate for North York, told the upper house if Canada were given the right to amend its own constitution confederation "would not last."

The Canadian Jewish congress resolved "to support all measures designed to intensify the boycott of German goods." The resolution was adopted at the final session of the third annual meeting.

The Union of Canadian Municipalities will meet in Vancouver August 19-20 instead of July 27-29 as previously planned so that the meeting will coincide with the visit of Sir Percy Vincent, Lord Mayor of London.

Vancouver Harbor Master

Perfecting Of Automobile Gave Commander Reed His Job

For more than a quarter of a century Commander A. H. Reed has been harbor-master of Vancouver, and oddly enough, it was the perfecting of the automobile that landed Commander Reed in the position he has held for so long. He retired as ship's master in 1908 and came ashore with the intention of going into the horse-breeding business. "It didn't take him long, however, to discover what every landsman already knew: that the day of the horse was passing. So he returned to the seafaring profession, did some marine surveying for the Dominion Government, and eventually was appointed port warden of Vancouver. Though well over 60 years of age, Commander Reed is still a clever amateur boxer."

Will Be Well Represented

Prominent Canadians Going To Coronation Next Year

Canada, as in the case of previous coronations, will be well represented at Westminster when King Edward is crowned May 12, 1937. Prime Minister Mackenzie King and a large section of the Dominion privy council will attend, as will probably opposition leader R. B. Bennett and many other leaders and members in the House of Commons and Senate.

Confidence In League

But Hertzog Thinks Versailles Treaty Should Be Overhauled

Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog at Cape Town termed the post-war Versailles treaty "the world's greatest source of friction," and declared failure of the League of Nations would lead to destruction of civilization.

General Hertzog, also minister for external affairs in the Union of South Africa, was speaking in the senate in a debate on the league.

He urged the necessity of revising the treaty, adding: "If war comes, this cursed treaty will be responsible."

The debate was on a motion by Dr. Thomas Visser, vice-president of the senate, that activities of the league be limited to the interests of world peace and the application of pacifist measures. Dr. Visser charged the league, as constituted at present, with "hypocrisy and subversion" to Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia.

Dr. D. S. Malan, leader of the National party, moved an amendment to Dr. Visser's motion, that the league should convene a world conference and should itself be revised in the light of its own experiences. He added that a plebiscite in any country in the world would result in a vote for peace.

General Hertzog expressed confidence the league would yet attain its high ideals. Its failure would lead to the destruction of civilization. Concluding, Hertzog said no one could condemn Great Britain for not disarming, because she was the one country which has done her best in this respect.

Business Was Brisk

Operators On R.M.S. Queen Mary Had Plenty To Do

Radio, wireless and telephone communications handled aboard R.M.S. Queen Mary from the time of departure from Southampton until the arrival at New York, included more than 90,000 words of press despatches sent and received, constituted an unprecedented volume aboard a merchant liner.

Although 14 operators worked at one time for a period of 36 hours without sleep, it was impossible for them to keep up with the demand for service.

There were 1,177 radio messages sent, totalling 62,591 words, and 975 messages received, totalling 18,826 words. In addition, about 10,000 words were received from the Canadian Press and other sources for the ship's newspaper, "The Ocean Times."

There were 42 incoming Atlantic telephone calls completed for a total of 241 minutes and 32 outgoing calls for a total of 312 minutes.

The ship established a record for Atlantic telephone service, probably because she is equipped with a secrecy device preventing other persons from listening in.

The longest calls from the ship were to South Africa, approximately 8,000 miles. Also there were two separate calls simultaneously to London and New York.

She sailed with stamps sufficient to meet what was expected to be an extraordinary demand. Before she was well out, the library was selling only small quantities at a time. She had 25,000 picture postcards aboard. All were gone by the end of the trip.

Shatterproof Glasses

New Lenses Protect Eyes Of Workers And Children

Among the recent developments in spectacle lenses is the new English lens known as Motex. These lenses cannot be told from the ordinary lenses which shatter to fragments when broken. They can be ground to any strength either in white or colored, single vision or double. Besides correcting any optical defect, the same as any regular lenses, they have the added advantage of protecting the eyes from the danger of having the glasses broken on the face. This is particularly valuable in the case of children, and those engaged in work where there is a possibility of pieces of iron, steel or stone flying in the face. To those engaged in such sports as tennis, badminton, golf, etc., they are an absolute guarantee against injury to the eyes through breakage.

Production Was Excessive

The League of Nations committee on suppression of drugs was told production of a certain narcotic (heroin) in Shanghai during 1934 exceeded between 12 and 14 times the legitimate requirements of the world.

Airmen Are Honored

Recognition Of Achievements In Flight Across Antarctic

Honorary rank of air commodore has been conferred on H. Hollick-Kenyon, and that of honorary group captain on J. H. Lymburner, it was announced by Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie. These distinctions have been awarded in recognition of the achievement of the two recipients in connection with their aeroplane flight across the Antarctic continent.

These Canadian aviators, both of whom have had years of experience in Arctic flying in northern Canada, were selected by Sir Hubert Wilkins to act as pilots for the Lincoln Ellsworth trans-Antarctic expedition. Hollick-Kenyon was chosen for his special qualifications as an air navigator; Mr. Lymburner as an air engineer. Hollick-Kenyon acted as pilot on the flight halter in aviation circles as an achievement without parallel in the history of flying. Upon Mr. Lymburner's ability depended the airworthiness of the plane for this test.

Hollick-Kenyon and Lymburner are British subjects of long residence in Canada. The former served as a pilot with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and later with the Royal Air Force. He was wounded on active service.

"The achievement of these two Canadian aviators was the fruit of unique experience gained in Canada. It is recognized as a pioneer exploit, equivalent in its day to those of Alcock and Brown, Lindbergh and Kingsford-Smith," said Mr. Mackenzie, in making the announcement.

"It is the desire of the Canadian government to express in this award of honorary rank the congratulations of the whole people of Canada to Hollick-Kenyon and Lymburner for the honor that they have brought to their country."

Head Of League Society

Sir Robert Falconer Re-Elected President Of Canadian Group

Sir Robert Falconer, former president of the University of Toronto, was re-elected president of the League of Nations Society, the society announced in a communique released at the end of its convention in Ottawa.

John W. Dufoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, was elected honorary vice-president, and Dr. W. R. C. Wallace, newly-named president of York's University, Kingston, Ont., was added to the list of active vice-presidents.

The communique said the society directed a special plea to former soldiers and members of the active defence forces to help in carrying out its program for peace.

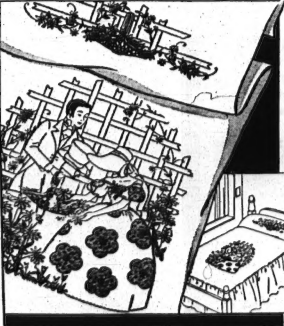

Going Into Business

Lloyd George Building Shop To Retail Farm Produce

David Lloyd George, remarkably successful as a model farmer, has announced he will enter the retail business. The war-time prime minister said he was having a roadside shop built near his estate at Churt, Surrey, which will stock fresh fruit, vegetables, flowers, eggs, honey and jam. It is hoped the produce will appeal especially to the passing stream of motorists.

Luxury Travel In Russia

Soviet Boudoir Train Said To Be Marvel Of Convenience

A Soviet boudoir train which makes the luxury trains look like stage-coaches was on an experimental run recently to Sochi, summer resort in the Crimea.

The least of its appointments is a barber shop—capitalistic trains have those. It also carries a nursery car with toys, complete bath compartments, individual radios and a train crew dressed in the manner of hotel doormen.

Passengers may rent pyjamas and slippers aboard the train in order to travel in all the comfort of their own boudoirs. Each of the chairs can be separated from the others by curtains, providing perfect solitude for those who like it.

Women may obtain needles, thread, and yarns with which to while away the time, merely for the asking.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 14

JESUS CRUCIFIED

Golden text: God commendeth his own love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Romans 5:8.

Lesson: Luke 23.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 130.

Explanations And Comments

The Crucifixion, Luke 23:33-38. On Golgotha, the place which is called the Skull, outside the walls of Jerusalem, they crucified Jesus. On either side of him was hung a malefactor.

"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do—that is humanity at its greatest. Men have their conceptions of human nature, and of what things make for greatness therein. These conceptions are very many and very varied. I submit that humanity has never been seen greater than in the Man Jesus when he said to the soldiers: 'I submit that I have no resentment, no anger, no lurking desire for punishment upon the men who were maltreating him.' (G. Campbell Morgan.)

"Dr. people stood beholding, and the rulers scoffed at him, saying, He saved others; let him save himself, if he is the Christ of God, his Messiah. 'It did not enter into their minds for a moment that the meaning of Messiahship was not the saving of himself, but the saving of others.' And the soldiers also mocked him, saying, If thou art the King of the Jews, save thyself. This was their test of his kingship. They could not conceive of a king who would do nothing to save himself.

"In place of his superscription the eye of faith sees another, 'Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.' (A. E. Garvie.)

"The Death of Jesus, Luke 23:44. Three hours of darkness and silence followed. Not only was the sun hidden but the curtain between the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies in the temple was torn in two. Jesus' self-committal, a quotation from the Holy Spirit heard: 'Father into thy hands I commend my spirit,' and then his spirit passed on to God.

A Remarkable Discovery

Enables Blind To Read From Ordinary Print

Discovery of an apparatus which enables blind persons to "read" an ordinary printed page through a series of minute electric shocks was announced by Emil Ranssen, Northwestern University psychology student at Evanston, Ill.

The apparatus employs a photo-electric cell which converts light reflected from the printed page into the electrical energy necessary to produce the shocks.

The "reader" places his hand in a specially constructed wooden "glove". Across the palm of this is a series of nine beads. Through the holes in these beads project the ends of small coils of wire.

Light reflected from the printed page is converted into electrical energy expands these wire coils in different order according to the shape of the particular letter. As these coils expand, their ends touch the hand of the "reader". After long training, the reader may learn to interpret each different series of shocks into the correct letter.

His inspiration for developing this type of apparatus came from Helen Keller, famed teacher of the blind, Ranssen said.

Once Did Flourishing Trade

Carver Of Meerschaum Pipes Is Dead In Vienna

Carving of meerschaum pipes, once a flourishing trade of which Vienna held a virtual monopoly, is dying.

Simon Schild, whose name was famous among the pipe smokers of the world for his artistic work, died there at the age of 68, almost blind. Two other masters still survive, but none of them ever attained the fame of Schild, for whose pipes and cigar holders, decorated with artistically carved lions, dogs, or bearded philosophers, enormous prices were paid.

Great Change Made In Barracks Of Second Battalion

For the 400 men of the second battalion (Scottish Rifles) at Quebec Barracks, Bordon, "Come to the Cookhouse Door Boys" has now been translated into "Gentlemen, your meal is served."

Snow-white tablecloths cover neatly arranged tables, on which knives, forks, spoons and glasses, and even napkins, are laid out. Vases of flowers from barrack gardens complete the attractiveness.

Food is served up more invitingly and every menu offers alternative dishes.

Soldier waiters in white jackets—cut on the lines of ship's stewards—hover round, replenishing water jugs and clearing away plates.

No longer is there a noise like an air raid; plates are taken away quietly on trolleys.

Men are allowed to wander in for their meals when they please, within limits—and they wear any clothes they choose, provided they are clean, from "full parade" to "civvies" and "fatigues."

Although the old Scottish custom of pipers walking round the room and playing at meal times has not yet been introduced as a final touch, there is discreet music from loud-speakers.

Major D. A. H. Graham, second in command of the battalion, who has had much to do with bringing about these changes, said: "We believe this will result in a considerable saving over the old system of 'First come, first served' and 'Grab all you can, because you will not get any more.'"

Science Set New Record

Wirephoto Gave Newspapers Quick Service On Auto Race

While grimy-faced speed aces were smashing records recently in the annual 500-mile auto race on Indianapolis' famous speedway, science, with a camera and a network of wires, was setting a record, too.

Just 16 minutes after the wave of a checkered flag signalled Lou Meyer's victory, an Associated Press picture of the race finish started moving over a portable wirephoto transmitter to newspapers from coast to coast.

Never before had any picture been transmitted by wire in such a short time after a camera recorded a news event.

While fans were still leaving the speedway, the picture was in newspaper offices on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, catching late afternoon papers in the west, and early morning editions in the east.

Division Of Ethiopia

Creator Of New Roman Empire Names Divisions

All Ethiopia has been divided into five parts by Benito Mussolini, creator of the new Roman empire. His cabinet approved a project by which each part becomes an administrative division. They are:

Britia—capital, Asmara; Amhara—capital, Gondar; Galla and Sidamo—capital, Jimma; Harar—capital, Harar; Somaliland—capital, Mogadiscio. The cabinet announced each division represented a homogeneous organization ethnically, geographically, historically, and politically.

Addis Ababa was named the capital for the new administrative organization of Ethiopia with a victory in charge, aided by a vice-governor-general and the chief of the general staff, the latter handling military matters.

Gas in the World War caused 181,053 known British casualties, which include more than 9,000 deaths.

These don't taste like YOUR Pickles, Mother!

Mother was disappointed. She thought she was taking care to have her mustard pickles just right. It was all the fault of that cheap mustard she had used, thinking to save a few cents.

It is the pure mustard that gives pickles their flavour and zest. Next time, mother, will you use KEE'S D.S.F. MUSTARD.

Made from seed grown in the Fens of England, Shells or hulls are removed and only the finest part of the seed is used. Superfine grinding ensures the full mustard flavour.

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of the Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank getting a loan for payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mell meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposal to Buzz, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with liquor and anger, tries to throttle Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming that Buzz has been robbed of the $400 they had obtained from the bank.

On their arrival home, Link and Helen find a couple of Link's workmen, who told Fleming that there was a strike at the dam, and that the men were afraid they would not get their wages. Link told them of the robbery and promised them their money as soon as possible. The men reluctantly returned to work.

Fleming finds Roper and Jackpot Mell making trouble among his workmen, and orders them off his place at the point of his gun. Both Jackpot and Roper swear revenge. Mell telling Fleming to carry his gun with him, as "they would shoot him the next time they saw him."

Buzz Hamilton goes to Fleming and asks that power attorney to give him to manage the Triple H. He argues that responsibility would be the best way to help him get his business and respect and social standing. Link, sensing this was Roper Kilgo's suggestion, refuses, and says that his sister's rights are protected, and that if one dies the other party to the dam agreement gets the whole of the property. Hamilton then snatches Fleming's gun from his holster and tries to shoot him. Link knocks him senseless, helps Buzz to recover, and then leaves him.

Later, as he was riding towards the dam, Fleming is shot at by a couple of riders, whom he recognizes as Kilgo and Buzz. Then he goes towards the dam. He hears a series of small explosions. He hurries to the dam to find there has been a land slide and two of his workmen are injured.

"Any time now, Well, Marty?"

Buzz gestured for him to step inside the telegraph office. "Ralph's flashing the Division Super, and then he'll sign your bill of lading. I brought cash, Link, for you. He produced a drawstring buckskin bag from his hip pocket and seating himself at Meara's desk, began to count out bills.

Link whistled. "That's the most real money I've seen for some time, Marty."

The other nodded, finished his count, and went over it again. Waco Byrne's interested eyes made Fleming smile. "You can tell the Star Loop men you'll pay them off soon as I get these bills changed. Maybe I could pay the Triple H men too, but that isn't really my business." He accepted the large-denomination bills and edged them carefully into his pigskin wallet.

"Sign here, Link." Buzz moved a paper toward him.

Taking up a pen, he wrote his name. "Much obliged. Eight thousand dollars!" He grinned and stood up. "That means that this, perhaps, is the best deal I've made yet. I'm glad when this load is off my shoulders!"

They smiled at his wry grimace. "Better be careful of that money, Link. It'd buy quite a little for almost anyone."

Byrne had left the office and was informing his five hands what Link had said about wages. The Star Loop owner nodded. "I've kind of been on the watch while the beef was being moved here," he said slowly. "How ever, there's no use huntin' trouble."

"You don't have to," Hardy. "Seem to get into it of your own accord. Say, and if you go to town to change that cash smaller, look out me Mell. He's spread it all over 'wide he'll kill you."

Fleming walked out of the place with a laugh that masked the intensity of him—for he felt an unshakable belief that this, perhaps, was the fateful day for the meeting. Nevertheless, he had no intention of avoiding a showdown with the Half Moon Saloon owner. It might as well come today as tomorrow.

As he touched spurs to his mount he reflected what this money in his trousers pocket meant to the irrigation project. He must pay off the workers at the dam, pay for certain materials long overdue, and of course, buy the horses and mules for his two hundred-odd steers. But it could be done; the cash, he thought as he broke into a whistle, would just reach.

The knot of cedars was on his left, while across the road lay jagged red cedars. Suddenly a horseman started from the trees. Metal gleamed in the sun, and with a start Link glimpsed two Colts directed his way.

He muttered an exclamation. His rovels touched the mustang, which jerked under him. At the same instant he bent low over the beast's mane and snatched at the forty-five on his thigh.

From the boulders a shot roared. It sang so close that instinctively Fleming slowed. His own gun, not yet drawn, slid back into its holster. Another slug nipped the mustang's mane.

"Don't draw or you're dead man!" That tone was authoritative and confident. One of the corner of his eyes Link saw the second horseman sitting straight in the saddle, squinting down the bluish barrel of a Winchester.

He was useless. It would be worse than to run or dive for his weapon—rank suicide. With a muttered curse he released the reins as his mount slowed but twenty feet from the two-gun man.

"Up with yore hands, Fleming!" Reluctantly he complied. His ride-man spurred his mount nearer, exchanging his Winchester for a six-gun. He was of medium height, burly of build, wearing a soiled and mussed flannel shirt, patterned in large checkers. His face was effectively hidden beneath a bandana that permitted only a narrow glimpse of eyes under the low-pulled antelope hat.

The second holdup was dressed in nondescript garments. He seemed less at ease in the saddle than the first. "Stand still!" he growled, then edged close while his comrade dismounted and came forward.

"I'll have the money first; then I'll take the gun myself. And don't make a bad move, Fleming!"

He was thinking fast. Dared he risk a draw. But those menacing Colts spelled certain death for a wrong move. Link's cheek quivered angrily.

"I suppose you know the penalty for this is twenty years or more?"

"Don't talk. 'Jus' stick yore fingers in yore pants pocket—left side—and haul out that cash. Quick now!"

He obeyed as slowly as possible. But the guns did not waver, nor the beady eyes above the mask that stared down the shining barrels. He clutched the wallet containing nearly eight thousand dollars, and slowly, reluctantly extended it.

The man on the ground snatched it. Impotent rage that had been warming in Link's breast burst its bonds at that instant. He gave his mounting a merciless jab with the right spur. Startled and mortified, it leaped aside with cat-quickness.

Fleming drew. The two-gun man jerked both triggers, but his shots whistled harmlessly over head. Link's gun rose and fired twice from his muzzle. Then another shot that flicked the sombrero of the man afoot. It lifted and sailed away—gently. With a gasp the man whirled and fled.

Again the twin Colts roared—and this time Link felt a knife-like sensation along his ribs. He reeled, clutching at his saddle horn while savagely he shot again.

The bullet went hurtling to its fateful mark. The bandit's guns twisted in mid-air, throwing beams of mirrored sunlight. At the same time he lurched back and toppled over the flank of his frightened mount to strike the road with a pop and a splash of grey dust.

Fleming spun his mustang around and went rushing after the fellow who plunged, recklessly disregarding of branches that gouged at his face and eyes. There was no sight, no sign of his man.

Then, as he emerged at the roadside at another point, he spied a cloud of furry dust. The fellow had a fast nag! Already he had almost a half mile lead, had galloped well into the distance. He was far ahead; it would be a long arduous chase.

His heart seemed leaden within him. The cattle money was gone!

Link spurred his horse back to the dead man. He meant to pursue the other chap, but wanted first if possible to identify this one of his holdups. The fellow lay where he had fallen in the road, his knees raised like a man sleeping, but his body at a grotesque, twisted angle and his face turned on one cheek in the dust.

Swinging down, Link walked close and knelt. His jaw set grimly as he saw the crimson-black hole, the size of a dime, in the man's forehead. Well, he deserved it, had asked for it.

The blood-sticky bandana came away. Fleming straightened, startled. "Looks like Berrent," he exclaimed aloud. "Master B. I. V. Berrent, the hunchback that claimed to represent the Western Improvement Company, wanted to buy me out that day the ranch house burned."

After some reflection he grasped the man's shirt collar and dragged him gently to the roadside shade. He pressed a clean bandana to the scratch he had got in the side. But there was no time to lose if he meant to chase the thief that still lived. He ran to his horse, snatched its reins, and was mounting when hoofbeats sounded steadily nearer.

Link's hand held his gun levelled when suddenly he recognized the newcomers. "Waco! Say, did you see a guy in a checkered shirt high-tailing for town?"

Byrne hauled up in a cloud of dust, his men following suit. "No. What happened, Link? We heard shootin'!"

"Holdup. They took the cattle money, but I got one of 'em. There he is," He gestured.

Byrne's face fell. He grunted as he got down and went to stare at the corpse. Swearing softly, he returned. "Which way'd that hunchback go?"

"Heckon we can follow his tracks some. Halty, that's what you're good at. See there? His boss had a shoe missing. Last I saw of him, he was heading northwest; but you can't tell if he'd keep on that way."

The anger on the bronzed faces of the Star Loop riders kept them silent still except for a muttered

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should purify two pounds of blood in the liver every day. If this is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just sits in the bowels, and makes you feel sick. You get constipated. Headaches, indigestion, and all the other troubles that come from a sluggish liver. You feel like a dead man, and the world looks black.

A new blood-purifying medicine always gets at the cause. You need something that works on the liver itself. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of blood flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmonizing and gentle, they take the bile flow freely, there is no work to do. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name.

Each one of these. Every man's hand sought; his gun to reassure himself that it was ready and swinging free. "We'll get him or bust!" rapped out Slim Halty, the man who had rescued Link from the burning ranch house.

"We've got to!" he returned between gritting teeth as they started off.

There was no sign of the rider now, for of course he had made good his escape while Link delayed to examine his dead pal. But the fresh tracks of his horse, visible here and there, were trail enough to the shrewd-eyed Slim Halty. The cowboy pressed on in silence, as fast as the trail allowed.

They rode half an hour, making a long arc. "Say, we're gettin' near town!" Waco pointed to distant roofs.

Link glanced at him. "Maybe that's the place he could hide."

At Laverty, one of the punchers, scratched his head. "Might be hard to find a guy holed up in town. Stephen ain't there to get help from. See him early this mornin', and he'll have important business."

Reckon he's still making his investigation of that eight hundred dollar job with Helen Hamilton. Shore takes Ames a long time."

"Boys," Link said slowly, his words dropping with crisp earnestness. "I reckon you all know what that money means. Part belongs to Helen Hamilton, most of it to me. Or rather, it belong to you chaps and the men at the dam. Without that, the boys workin' in the cut might get sore and wreck all they've done."

"Somehow," he stated in a low tone of iron determination, "we've got to get that cash back."

"Yeah, but how?" Byrne's face wore a hopeless look. "This hombre we trailed has got a place to hide, shore."

Fleming nodded. "That's where you fellows come in. If you'll back me to the limit—an I mean, gun in play, maybe—we'll get that cash back. I don't know how, but we will!" His jaw clicked, and with eyes that were mere slits he stared from one to another of the men.

There was a moment of hesitant silence. "Gunplay don't cut any ice with me," Halty complained. "You don't have to ask me I scared to pull my shooter, Link."

"Me either!" supported Clem Drew. "Same here. I'm for gettin' that cash. I reckon you're in town!" Waco Byrne agreed.

The other three hands voiced similar views. Silence fell as they waited, all eyes on Link.

"Since Stephen isn't around, we have to do our own law. Remember, whatever happens, back me. I'll depend on it. Slim, you and Drew and Porth circle the town to the west. String out as if each was alone. Walk your nags toward Main Street keeping your eyes peered for that gunman. He's wearin' a checkered shirt, corduroy pants, and a sombrero. He's pretty tall, but heavy set—a beefy hombre. Black hair, I think, and he had a Winchester along with saddle boot for it. I think he carries a knife in a scabbard, and one axgrip."

Old Tradition Broken

When Lord Minto Succeeded Curzon As Viceroy To India

A few days ago we referred to a tradition that the incoming and outgoing Viceroy should never meet on Indian soil, a tradition that was involuntarily broken by Lord Curzon when succeeded by Lord Minto.

A correspondent now sends the true story of that meeting.

The "affront" to the long almost independent of the home government, suffered an inexplicable blow to the pride when he was forced to resign.

Moreover, he was humiliated because he did not consider Minto a sufficiently brilliant successor.

"Imagine sending to succeed me a gentleman who only jumps hedges!" he exclaimed on hearing the news.

(Minto had won the French Grand National and had ridden four times at Aintree.)

The "affront" still rankling, he refused to send the usual warship to Aden to escort the new Viceroy. When Minto arrived in Bombay there was no official reception and the party was kept hanging about for several hours.

Curzon made no appearance until the new Viceroy had actually entered Government House. Then he came down—in a shooting coat and slippers!

It is of course, a rule that the new and old Viceroy should meet in pomp and ceremony and the incoming be treated with the respect due to a representative of the King—London Daily Sketch.

England's Five Richest Men

Wealthiest Of Them All Has Twice Refused A Title

England's five richest men: Bored Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second Duke of Westminster—lands.

Sly Sir John Reeves Ellerman—shipping.

Harold Harnsworth, Villcourt Rothermere—newspapers.

William Richard Morris, Baron Nuffield—automobiles.

Joseph Lang—flour mills.

Plain Joe Rank, probably richest of all, is the only one without a title. He has refused one twice, saying: "I'm Joe Rank to everyone. They wouldn't know me as 'Sir Joseph'."

Dim Your Headlights When Passing Car Going In Opposite Direction

Modern automobiles are equipped with dazzling, glaring headlights that penetrate the darkness and lessen the dangers of night driving. But such powerful lights, unless dimmed, are blinding to motorists travelling in opposite direction and frequently cause fatal accidents. Be courteous to your fellow motorist. Be to him as you would desire him to be to you. When driving at night always dim or drop your lights before passing another car travelling in the opposite direction. By so doing you will help lessen automobile accidents.

Men Make Best Cooks

Bring Scientific Viewpoint To Kitchen Opinion Of Teacher

Mrs. Margaret Metzger, who teaches cooking and home economics to ten men and boys at Peepers, New York, says that men are better students than women. "Men bring a scientific viewpoint to the 'kitchen,'" Mrs. Metzger said. "Their work is thorough."

Little Helps For This Week

Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. Romans 12:12.

Come in this accepted hour; Bring Thy heavenly kingdom in; Fill us with Thy glorious power, Rooting out the seeds of sin.

If we wish to overcome evil we must overcome it by good. There are doubtless many ways of overcoming evil in our own hearts, but the simplest and most universal is to overcome it by active occupation in some good word or work. The best antidote against evil of all kinds, against the evil thoughts that haunt the soul, against the needless perplexities which distract the conscience, is to keep hold of the good we have. Impure thoughts will not stand against pure words, and prayers and deeds. Little doubts will not avail against great certainties. Fight your affections on things above, and then you will be less and less troubled by the cares, the temptations and the troubles of things on earth.—A. P. Stanley.

Snuff Habit Revived

Dealers In Britain Report Big Increase In Sales

Snuff has "come back" in the United Kingdom. In the shops of some well-known tobacco merchants and dealers in snuff in London, it is stated that in the past three years snuff-takers have increased by nearly 1,000 per cent.

The new snuff-takers are grouped into two classes—those of the old family customers who had lapsed in their snuff orders for a generation or so and have now returned to it, and the younger men and women. The result has been that new brands and blends have had to be evolved, though it is largely left to the old and the very young to support those pedigree blends which have come down unchanged in their recipes from the 18th century.

Soviet Democracy

Abolish Employment Discrimination Against Class Privileges

The all-union Soviet control committee at Moscow has abolished employment discrimination against classes privileged under the czarist regime.

The order removes bars to employment for former members of the Russian nobility and merchants and was described as a sign of the growth of "Soviet democracy."

It also puts a halt to discrimination against persons with criminal records.

LICENSING THE NEWS-PAPERS, WHAT NEXT?

Licensing Newspapers by way of siding a truth telling campaign is the latest brain wave in Alberta, which is daily featured in the joke columns of the newspapers, both daily and weekly, in other parts of our fair land, as well as in other lands, not to mention the magazines, is the most damning thing a politician or any one in authority has to meet, and these days Alberta is certainly being damned. Real men would rather face bullets than ridicule, and the man, who can effectively ridicule a cause or a person is a force of great magnitude. And certainly Alberta is being ridiculed with ridicule these days and how it is hurting. And who is there who will say that certain Albertans have not given other Albertans and those outside the Province plenty of reason to ridicule things in Alberta. It is altogether too bad, but it is still the naked truth.

The suggestion that newspapers should be licensed so that they will tell the truth is just as silly as raising funds for another political bible house. Who is going to be the judge of the truth, and isn't one political bible-house enough in this poor benighted Province? No doubt, a "Truth Finding" one man commission would be set up to determine if the poor newspapers are telling the truth, or in other words a Hitler, who would only allow such things to be published as he considers truthful, right and proper. Who is this "He-man?"

Now who is the man who would be found one hundred percent truthful, and where is the paper, or the press committee, who is like Caesar's wife above reproach? The newspaper boys are as truthful as any bunch of hard working souls in the world—in fact they tell so much truth that some people get awfully hurt. Propaganda sheets may stray quite away from the path which made George Washington famous, but real newspapers are invariably seekers after the true and correct details. To err is human, but erring is not deliberately lying. However, we do know plenty of the critics of the written word of the newspaper men, who would qualify for a directors' seat in an Ananias Club.

However, the veteran newspaperman, or, better, journalist, smiles, as he listens to those who would reform the press. There is an altogether too prevalent type of politician these days, who tries to leave the impression that the press is doing him wrong and that as far as the press is concerned it is a case of "He who is not for us, is against us" and the right of honest constructive criticism is denied. But the right of honest constructive criticism either by the press or the individual is the divine right secured through centuries of struggle for freedom of speech and press and will not be surrendered in Canada, one of the brightest gems of the British Commonwealth of Nations. They may Hitlerize Germany, but not by a long shot the British Empire or Canada. Licensing the press is just another form of Hitlerism, and so arranging things that the people will get the news the Dictators say people should get, and not what they are entitled to as citizens of a free country.

But, if they license the press, why not license the radio spell-binders, and the preachers, and all those, who lay down the verbal barages in any manner whatsoever? Why stop at the newspapers? Certainly, any

The best definition of a Communist it has yet seen, says the Kitchener Recorder, is that a Communist is one who thinks everything is the matter with the country and that nothing's wrong with him.

We never knew we were in the class of the Money Barons until we read Aberhart's criticisms of the newspapers. And some of our creditors will not be believing it yet. But we do control the destiny of The Claresholm Local Press and are no more susceptible to outside influences than any member of the present Legislature of Alberta, not excepting the Premier himself. Of course we are quite conscious that as a newspaper we are only a small frog in a metaphorically small puddle, but even though we bob down when sniped at, we hop out on shore and croak away at our heart's pleasure—and once in a while someone listens to—Claresholm Local Press.

A fair-minded man would believe what he reads in a good newspaper as quickly, and in many cases more quickly than the stuff that comes over the radio at times, in fact the stuff that often-times comes from the pulpit. The trouble with Alberta is that there are too many Pharisees living in our province, and too many making a money-changing place out of God's house. The surest way to make Alberta a godless province is to keep continually mixing politics and religion. God meant Christianity to show us the proper way of life, and then for us to carry out our Christian training into our daily lives. But He certainly did not intend that His church should be a weekly forum for bitter political discussion.

It is too bad that church and better society are so often used by the unscrupulous to further their selfish and oftentimes dishonest ends. It may be said that this is a tribute to the church and society, but church and society can very well get along without any such doubtful tribute.

Reverting to the press, the newspapers are under a strict legal law, and while people are continually finding fault with the newspapers for not telling the truth, there are very few legal suits against the newspapers. It is very easy to tell one's friends that a certain newspaper story is incorrect, but it is not so easy to tell it to the judge and jury under oath. Untruths spoken about newspapers and individuals become perjury, when given under oath in the courts.

Today, as regards the newspapers, it is a matter of protesting too much. The fact is that the newspapermen run down the truth, and, if their stories hurt the feelings of the politicians, it is because the truth hurts. Nevertheless, if the newspapers must be licensed, then license those who use the radio, the pulpit, the forum, and the soap box. Let us have all the truth and nothing but the truth. But then, like the proposed dog license, licensing the press is a grand gesture while every newspaper has its readers, like every farmer has a dog.—The New Review, Drumheller.

At the evening service at the United church on Sunday, Rev. A. E. Larke was in charge. During the service a report was received from Mrs. A. A solo by Miss Fraser, accompanied by the orchestra, was pleasingly rendered, as was also a quartette by choir members.

It is too bad that the Blairmore football club had to drop from the league this season because of lack of support locally. The Blairmore team last season was a strong and successful aggregation and looked forward to bigger and better things this season, but it is impossible to carry on without good moral and financial support. Blairmore's dropping out of the league is not in the best interests of Blairmore as a go-ahead town—but don't blame the hockey boys.

For the comfort of those that live in dread of a final Communist world conquest, it may be said that thus far nothing opposed to human nature has ever succeeded. Human nature wants to have money, and do as it pleases with it; it wants to have a house and a family of its own. Human nature wants to amount to and be something on its own account; it does not want to be a "comrade" with a number. It wants to be Mr. John Jones, Rotarian, or judge, governor, congressman, "socialite" or something.—Detroit Times.

On the evening previous, at an informal gathering in St. Stephen's College, Rev. W. T. Young, on behalf of the college, presented Dr. Tuttle with a gown and hood to match the new degree. On the same day the Edmonton Presbytery nominated Dr. Tuttle for Moderator of the General Council of The United Church.

"TAXES"

Taxes, taxes, taxes, taxes.
Curses on him who relaxes.
Tax the paupers, tax the rich.
Assessor's palms have got the itch.
Suppose the country is agin it.
What the hell, there's millions in it!

Though the white man's burden's heavy,
Let him have it, hike the levy.
Tax him early, tax him late,
City, Province, Nation, State,
Tax unrealized resources,
Marriage, childbirth and divorces.

Give the wealthy gents a soaking,
Grab that millionaire, he's croakin'.
Tax his death gasp and estate,
If the dough gives out inflate.
Come on Senate, come on House.
He who hangs back now's a louse.
Must's the word sans relaxation.
Whoop'er up boys—more taxation.

A colored woman (who was rather fleshy, asked her mistress for a dainty white silk dress (which had been discarded) to wear to a big wedding.

"Why, Mandy, you couldn't wear that dress, I am sure, for it is small and you are very heavy."

The servant started to turn away dejectedly, but brightened suddenly and looked hopefully at her mistress with the plea: "Yassum, Missy Car'line, Ah knows de dress is small an' Ah's awful fleshy. But Ah gives!"

Mrs. Brown had a new Swedish maid, who said one day after the holidays: "Mrs. Brown, where bane your son?"

Mrs. Brown said: "Oh, he has gone back to Yale, and I miss him so much."

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Walker left on Saturday afternoon for an extended visit to Aberdeen, Scotland.

The money prize at Cole's theatre on Saturday night was won by Wilfred Rhy.

A social evening was held in the K. P. hall on Tuesday, celebrating the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Kyle, who were recipients of a beautiful gift. A supper was served by the ladies.

A Social Credit meeting was held on Wednesday last in the Union hall. Mr. Tanner, M.L.A., of Cardston, was the principal speaker.

The local tennis courts are now ready for the game.

BELLEVUE HAPPENINGS

The whist drive and dance held in the I.O.O.F. hall on Thursday evening last under the auspices of Ray of Hope Rebekah Lodge, was quite successful. Winners of various prizes were Mrs. Joe Radford, ladies' first; Mrs. Martin (Hillcrest) second; Mr. Jordan, men's first; H. Mark (Blairmore) second. After supper, dancing was enjoyed till 1 o'clock, music being supplied by the Altermatt orchestra.

The Oddfellows' and Rebekahs' memorial service, honoring deceased brothers and sisters, was held in the I.O.O.F. hall on Sunday afternoon at 2.30. An impressive sermon was delivered by Rev. John Wood, of Hillcrest. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. R. Upton. Following the service, the members proceeded to the Bellevue cemetery, where flowers were placed on graves.

E. O. Duke, M.L.A., and N. E. Tanner, M.L.A., for Cardston, addressed about two hundred people in the I.O.O.F. hall here on Friday evening. The chair was occupied by J. H. McLean.

Mrs. E. W. Christie was a week end visitor to Lethbridge.

Rev. and Mrs. R. Upton have returned from Edmonton, where they attended the United Church conference.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Barless and Jack were week end visitors to Creston.

Mrs. Hicks, of Edmonton, is spending a few days with friends here.

Mrs. William Beck entertained a number of ladies at her home on Monday evening.

Charles Anderson, who has been working at Big Valley, is back in town for a few days.

Mr. John Shevels assisted Rev. R. Upton at the United church on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cole and daughter spent several days in Calgary last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sutherland, of Blairmore, were visitors here this week.

Mrs. McIntyre, of Medicine Hat, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hutton.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

The Home Helpers' Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Robert Littleton on Thursday night of last week.

Mrs. E. S. Easterbrook paid a visit to her son Roland and family at Lethbridge over the week end.

Mrs. Bourke and daughter, of Enchant, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thibert at their home on the South Fork river.

Mrs. James Lote and daughter Grace have returned from spending the week end in Lethbridge.

Mrs. Swanson has returned to Calgary, after a visit to her sister, Mrs. Henry Carr on the North Fork.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tustian, accompanied by Mrs. J. R. Wood and Mrs. F. A. Tustian, were motor visitors to Lethbridge on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Bundy have returned from a visit to Eastern States and Canada. Their daughter Barbara returned with them from Nova Scotia, where she had been staying with her grandmother and attending school.

The provincial weed inspector paid a visit to this municipality on Friday last, checking up and investigating the various districts and seeing that local inspectors are appointed, that the territory may be fully covered and the work well done in eradicating noxious weeds.

A rain of two days and nights over the week end was estimated to be worth $100,000 to this district, and again, on Tuesday evening of this week, another half inch fell. Farmers are now rejoicing over this rich blessing, as there had been no moisture for several weeks, and the fields and pasture lands were badly in need of it. Gardens, too, which were stunting along, should now make rapid growth. At present writing, June 10th, there are signs of still more rain here.

"What's the difference between valor and discretion?"

"Well, to travel on an ocean liner without tipping would be valor."

"I see."

"And to come back on a different boat would be discretion."

Caller: "Won't you walk as far as the street car with me, Tommy?"

Tommy (aged 5): "I can't."

Caller: "Why not?"

Tommy: "'Cause we're gonna have dinner as soon as you go."

BRITAIN'S GIANT

NEW CUNARDER

The 1,015 foot, 80,000 ton British passenger vessel, Queen Mary, steamed into New York Harbor on the afternoon of June 1st, and ten tugboats towed her to her dock while two others stood by in case of need. The lines which fastened the ship to the tugboats and to the pier were eight-inch, and one of them snapped after the ship had been docked a few minutes. It takes some strength to hold an 80,000-ton ship. The great vessel failed to equal the time of her great French rival, the Normandie, but only by forty-two minutes in the drive across 3,158 miles of sea. The vessel carried 1,849 passengers and averaged 29.13 knots an hour as compared with the Normandie's average of 29.64, made a year ago. The British admirers of the vessel hope that in the near future the Queen Mary will not only equal the time of her French rival, but will surpass it. One thing is to be noted about the new ship, that whereas the Cunard Line is under contract with the British Government to place all their vessels at the disposal of the Government in the event of war and to put in stiffening in case of need for guns, this new monarch of the ocean is under no such instructions. The new ship is emphatically one for peaceful purposes.—Ex.

MR. ABERHART AND THE PRESS

Criticism is the lot of any public man, and any man who cannot stand being criticized would be well advised to forego public life. Mr. Aberhart, as the head of a new movement in this province which differed widely from any political group previously known to Albertans, was certain to be criticized freely, and he was and still is. That is inevitable in any country where the people take any interest in their government, and where there is freedom of the press. Every government in such circumstances is properly subject to criticism, and as long as that criticism is reasonably constructive should welcome it. Admittedly the present provincial government is new to the work of administration, and is engaged in learning how to run this province. That is certainly not to their discredit, but it does leave them open for criticism.—Red Deer Advocate.

STAMP MONEY PROPOSED

The Alberta government is about to launch into a venture which is a kind of social credit, namely the issuing of a substitute for money which will be used to pay workers. The cabinet has been itching to get into this experiment for some time and now the plan has been sufficiently advanced to get an idea of its rudiments.

As far as we can discover, the new scheme is merely the oft-suggested "stamp money" idea. The "money" is in the form of bonds upon which a stamp must be affixed with every transaction. The purchase of the stamps provides funds for the ultimate redemption of the certificates.

It may be that the plan will work out, although the difficulties in the way of success are manifold and many of them unforeseen. Anyway, something must be done, as ten months have now elapsed and Social Credit dividends seem just as far away as ever.

If this scheme works smoothly and satisfactorily we will eat a lot of remarks we have made from time to time about the Aberhart government—along with a side order of crow.—Hanna Herald.

"Ah," said the customs officer, producing a bottle of whiskey, "I thought you said there were only old clothes in that trunk?"

"Aye, that's ma night cap," said the Aberdonian.

I AM THE PRINTING PRESS

I am the printing press, born of the mother earth. My heart is of steel, my limbs are of iron, and my fingers are of brass.

I sing the songs of the world, the oratorios of history, the symphonies of all time.

I am the voice of today, the herald of tomorrow. I weave into the warp of the past the woof of the future. I tell the stories of peace and war alike.

I make the human heart beat with passion or tenderness. I stir the pulse of nations, and make brave men do braver deeds, and soldiers die.

I inspire the midnight toiler, weary at his loom, to lift his head again and gaze, with fearlessness, into the vast beyond, seeking the consolation of a hope eternal.

I am the tireless clarion of the news. I carry your joys and sorrows every hour. I fill the dullard's mind with thoughts uplifting. I am light, knowledge, power. I epitomize the conquests of mind over matter.

I am the record of all things mankind has achieved. My offspring comes to you in the candle's glow, amid the dim lamps of poverty, the splendor of riches; at sunrise, at high noon, and in the waning evening.

I am the laughter and tears of the world, and I shall never die until all things return to the immutable dust. I am the printing press.

Premier Aberhart has been unfair in his attitude towards newspapers' taxation. His promises that there would be no increased taxation have proved to be more easily broken than pie-crusts, and sanctity of contracts has been totally disregarded. Social Credit dividends are as far off as ever, and there is a probability that Mr. Aberhart will return to the school room, for the longer he remains in office, the more bewildered he appears to become.—Coleman Journal.

Lack Of Purchasing Power

One often hears the comment that the prosperity of the cities and towns is dependent upon the prosperity of the farmers, but little is heard of its corollary, namely that the well being of the farmer hinges upon the prosperity of the urban centres, though the one is unquestionably as true as the other.

Possibly the latter has not been heard so frequently in Western Canada as the former because, until very recent times, the farmers' income has been largely derived from an exportable surplus of grain. Under such circumstances the consumer of the bulk of Western Canadian farm products was geographically remote and the fact that the affluence or otherwise of the consumer was of considerable import was but dimly perceived, if recognized at all.

However, this relationship between the Western Canadian producer and the consumer of his products has undergone a change in the past few years and indications are not lacking that the change may be even more accentuated in the next few years.

In the first place, during the past half dozen or so of depression years a substantial percentage of Western Canadian farmers have had little or no income to boast about. Because of a succession of dry years many of them had no crops to sell and others who reaped some wheat or other grains have not received sufficient price to render their work remunerative, partly because of the closing of former markets and partly because of the existence of a big carryover which could not be liquidated, except at tremendous loss.

As a result of their predicament many farmers, even with conditions somewhat more promising, have reduced their acreages seeded to bread grains and are endeavoring to increase their output of other products, including livestock, some of which are finding an outlet to a limited degree in overseas markets and others which, on account of their nature or because of lack of processing facilities, must necessarily be disposed of in local centres.

In the case of those products which are exportable, it is necessary to find new markets or expand existing markets. In the case of products which must be disposed of in local markets, consumption capacity must be increased if the farmer is to be able to dispose of such commodities at a price to yield him a profitable return.

Too frequently, in the past two or three years, farmers have had the experience of hauling or shipping produce to local centres only to find themselves faced with the choice of disposing of them at ruinously low prices or of taking them home again, unsold.

The irony of the situation is that in many cases, perhaps in all of them, the produce would have been welcome in the home of the potential local consumers but, because of conditions which made it necessary for the farmer to raise such produce, these people were unable to buy it, or only at such prices as to render the transaction unprofitable to the producer. In other words, the trouble was lack of purchasing power.

There is no question that local markets are capable of consuming a great deal more local produce if the consumer had the necessary purchasing power and this brings us back to the original statement that the well being of the farmer is dependent upon the prosperity of the urban centres and, so far as Western Canada is concerned, this is much more true than it was a few years ago.

If new local markets can be opened up and the purchasing power of the residents of existing local markets can be increased the problem of the farmer will be at least partially solved.

Fortunately there is every reason to hope that the next few years will see the development of new local markets with the discovery of mineral wealth in the northern areas and its development, a process which is being greatly accelerated at the present time.

This, coupled with an increasing influx of tourists from other provinces and the United States give ground for belief that new markets for local products are in the making. That the latter has real potentialities, at present principally enjoyed by Eastern Canada and British Columbia, is evidenced in the recent publication of statistics showing that more money was spent in Canada by tourists last year than was realized by the sale of Canadian export wheat.

As for the expansion of existing local markets that is, as already stated, largely a question of purchasing power and how this purchasing power is to be increased is a question which is giving rise to a great deal of thought. Can it be done by some overt action or can it only be brought about by the ordinary evolution of economic processes?

One quiet student of affairs, whose name has never appeared in print and perhaps never will, suggested to the writer recently that it could be brought about almost overnight if ten or a dozen of the big industrial leaders of the nation would gather around a table and agree to increase salaries and wages all round. "Merchants," he said, "give much thought to the purchase and display and sale of their commodities, but little or none to the other half of their business—the ability of the consumers to buy."

No Time For Business

Bystander—"Did you get the number of that car that knocked you down, madam?"

Victim—"No, but the husky who was driving it wore a three-piece tuxedo suit, lined with Canton crepe, and she had on a periwinkle hat, trimmed with artificial cherries."

Natives of southern China raise a great deal of rice, but seldom eat it; while peasants of northern China rarely see rice.

Just wishing for things to happen never gets you anywhere.

Maintain National Credit

By Meeting Obligations To The Full Extent Of Capacity

Members of Canadian Manufacturers' Association meeting at Quebec, lent approbation to the suggestion by their president, W. S. Morden of Toronto, that Canada, by application of "common sense and some old-fashioned methods, should anticipate the coming years with confidence and satisfaction."

The president, in a comprehensive annual review of world economic conditions presented at the annual convention, noted improvement throughout the world generally during the past year.

He was optimistic of the future but with his optimism came a note of warning against too ready spending and loose borrowings by government.

"One feature in connection with the increase of public debt that is giving concern to many individuals and business men," he said, "is the increasing proportion of government obligations that is being acquired by banking institutions. It is, of course, a sound banking theory that when business and industry are depressed and banking funds are abundant, government securities form an ideal investment."

This theory assumes that when industry and business revive and there is a greater demand on the banks for loans, the government securities can be readily disposed of to the investing public. But it is a necessary implication that the amount of security so held should not be greatly in excess of the capacity of the investing public to absorb. It is also widely felt that if our various governments had to look to insurance, loan and trust companies and private investors as the chief purchasers of their securities the increased difficulty of floating loans would operate as a curb on borrowing."

Mr. Morden said the aim of Canada should be to maintain national credit "by meeting obligations to the full extent of capacity, refunding our debt at lower rates of interest whenever opportunities occur, and reducing expenses."

Steady improvement in conditions made it appear reasonable to hope that the world, as a whole, is gradually recovering from the great depression, which culminated the progressive economic and trade disasters that followed and had their origin in, or were at least precipitated by, the dislocation of the war."

New Type Electric Bulb

Steam Light Latest Development In Modern Illuminating Methods

A cigarette can be lighted in a jet of steam made by a new type of electric light bulb invented in the lamp development department of the Nela Park laboratory of the General Electric Company in East Cleveland, Ohio.

Details of the new development have been made public. The steam light is one result of a revolutionary change in structure of electric light bulbs, made by a new art of welding metal to glass.

The steam bulb is about the size of a large house lamp. Set like a hood over its tungsten filament is a copper coil. This coil develops a jet of steam the size of a lead pencil almost instantly after the light is switched on. A piece of paper held in the jet curls up, smokes and turns to black ash. The steam with this burning power has a temperature of 1,300 degrees Fahrenheit.

The Only Thing Left

At a court function, we are told, Premier Mussolini stooped and picked up a handkerchief which King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and Ethiopia had dropped, and was profusely thanked by the monarch. Well, His Majesty should be grateful. It's about the only thing left he can stick his nose into, states the Windsor Daily Star.

Prince Rides Bicycle

When a Mongol prince, descendant of a long line of hardriding horsemen, abandons his pony for a bicycle, it is news in the frontier settlement of Kweihsu, Inner Mongolia. Prince Khang, a leading Mongol dignitary, shocked his compatriots recently by appearing on the main street of Kweihsu on a bicycle.

Forgot To Forget

One of our newspaper friends says the Windsor Daily Star brings a good story of the absent-minded professor who had suddenly found himself at a dinner which he didn't want to attend. The professor rambled on something like this: "I didn't mean to attend this affair tonight; I meant to forget to come, and I forgot to forget."

Was Partly Modern

Proclamation Of Coronation Date Broadcast To Empire

With forms and ceremonies inherited from the immemorial past, the date of the coronation of King Edward VIII. was duly proclaimed in London. But modern science and usage intruded even, into medieval pageantry.

When the Earl Marshal, Duke of Norfolk, and his attendants stepped out upon the hoary walls of St. James's Palace, there was immediately in front of them a microphone to carry to the ears of the kingdom at large all that was said in the King's name. The proclamation set the date of the coronation as May 12, 1937. The date was announced in a special issue of the London Gazette.

While a fanfare blared from the silver trumpets of the Horse Guards, the Clerical Principal King of Arms, with white-gloved hands, unrolled a long scroll nearly a yard wide. In sonorous tones he began his reading. The King's guard of Grenadiers stood at attention, and the great crowd hushed into silence. By means of amplifiers, every sentence was heard distinctly to the farthest limits of the throng. Farther away on the battlemented ivy-clad walls of the palace, stood members of the King's personal household.

Sir Gerald read the proclamation, "Declaring His Majesty's pleasure touching his royal coronation and the solemnity thereof." The reading took nearly 10 minutes. It opened with a reference to "the favour and blessing of almighty God" and spoke of "our princely care for the preservation of the lawful rights and inheritances of our loving subjects."

Big Prize For Air Race

Race From England To South Africa In September

Sir Alan Cobham announced that I. W. Schlesinger, South African millionaire, has given £10,000 ($50,000) prize money for the proposed air race from England to South Africa, to coincide with the British empire exhibition at Johannesburg. Schlesinger is promoting the race with Cobham, himself a pioneer long-distance flyer, as consultant. The Johannesburg exhibition opens Sept. 15 and will run until Jan. 15, 1937. The air race proposed has the approval of the British air ministry and the South African government has promised every assistance.

Entire organization of the race will be undertaken by the Royal Air Club of Great Britain and participation will be limited to British empire pilots and aircraft. In this respect it will differ from the London-to-Melbourne race of 1934 which was open to all-comers.

Cobham said Schlesinger's motive in arranging the event was the promotion of commercial aircraft and the furtherance of air interest on the part of citizens of the British empire. But chiefly, he said, the race was intended to focus attention on the Johannesburg exhibition. Cobham added the race would show that the day was not far distant when it will be possible to spend a weekend in Johannesburg. Possibly, he predicted, the flight will be accomplished in two days.

Feather In Your Cap

Phrase Originated From Custom That Is Almost Universal

This phrase means that something is an honor to you. The allusion is to the very general custom in Asia and among the American Indians of adding a feather to the headgear of every enemy slain. The ancient Egyptians, and many others had a similar custom, and it is still usual for the English sportsman who kills the first woodcock to pluck out a feather and stick it in his cap.

The custom in one form or another seems to be almost universal. In Hungary at one time one might wear a feather but he who had slain a Turk, and it is to be remembered that when Gordon quelled the Taiping rebellion he was honored by the Chinese government with the "yellow jacket and peacock's feather."

The new Peltier Comet, first to be found this year and first to be visible to the unaided eye since 1927, will swing into the range of vision, late in July, Harvard College Observatory announced.

Still 120,000,000 miles from the earth, the comet has increased its apparent brightness from ninth to eighth magnitude in four days and by the end of July, before it starts to recede, it will be brighter than sixth magnitude and within 20 million miles.

- 4 cups flour
- ½ teaspoon Magic Baking Powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons shortening (½ butter, ½ lard)
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- Milk, sufficient to make soft dough, about 2¼ cups
- Sift together three times flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in the shortening. Add sugar, mix well. Add milk to make soft dough. Turn on floured board. Pat or roll lightly to 1" thickness. Cut rather larger than ordinary. Bake in oven 250 degrees F. 15 to 20 minutes. When done split and spread with creamed butter. Put between biscuits some crushed and sweetened strawberries. The biscuits may be covered with whipped cream, and the juice from the fruit poured round the dish or served at the table as many people do not like the short cake biscuit soaked with juice.

Homer Watson Dies In His 81st Year At His Home In Ontario

Homer Watson, one of Canada's outstanding artists, died at his home near Kitchener, Ont., in his 81st year. He had been ill for several months.

In the same rural community where he died, Homer Watson was born in 1855 and began his art career without tuition of any kind.

In 1880 the Marquis of Lorne purchased "The Pioneer Mill," exhibited by Watson at the Royal Canadian Academy. This painting and another of Watson's early works, "Last of the Drought," went to the private collection of Queen Victoria. Watson's fame spread and he made several trips to England, exhibiting with the famous artists of his day.

His outstanding contribution to the history of the Great War was his panoramic "Valcartier Camp," done under assignments by the Canadian government in 1914.

WIDER MARKETS FOR CANADIAN GOODS IS NEEDED

Quebec.—B. W. Coghill of Montreal, as the new president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, challenged the C.M.A. to "go and negotiate sound and enduring trade agreements that will benefit all Canada."

"During our history we have made unsatisfactory agreements with other countries but we have also made very good ones," said Mr. Coghill at the annual dinner at the conclusion of the 65th convention. "Let us continue our efforts to negotiate sound and enduring agreements," he said. "Volume of trade alone is not sufficient. The character and value to this country of the exchange of products for those of other countries are vital to prosperity."

"Canada has immense stores of wealth in the form of raw and partly finished materials," said the new president. "But it would not be wise, economically, to export them unless it is done to the permanent advantage of all Canadians."

If industry was to employ more people it should be given every reasonable encouragement, Mr. Coghill said. If manufacturing operations were curtailed by external influences unemployment would result.

An appeal for members of the organization to take greater interest in the economic and financial affairs of all western Canada was made by F. C. Brown of Vancouver, newly-elected first vice-president.

The delegates, who previously applauded when one of their speakers suggested all unemployed in Canada should be put to work on a cash basis to relieve the taxation burden, heard from Hon. T. D. Bouchard, Quebec's minister of municipal affairs, how Quebec province plans to do this.

"This plan has no other end in view than to improve the lot of the unemployed on relief, to give a practical use to the millions that have been lost up to now in direct relief, to protect finances of public bodies and to attenuate the crisis by stimulating commerce and industry through creation of useful works," said Mr. Bouchard.

C.P.R. To Build Road

Given Right To Build Branch Line In Quebec

Quebec.—By a vote of 23 to 4 the railway committee of the Quebec legislature gave the Canadian Pacific Railway the right to build a line from Angliers, in Labelle county, to Senneville, in Abitibi county, via Noranda.

The company, by its bill, first requested permission to build as far as Lake Chibougamau. The committee decided it could only build the line from Angliers to Noranda.

Will Hear Pension Claims

Acting Chairman Of Canadian Commission Goes To England

Ottawa.—Justice Fawcett G. Taylor, acting chairman of the Canadian pension commission, has sailed from Montreal for England. Judge Taylor will hear claims for pension of former members of the Canadian forces now resident in the United Kingdom. At the conclusion of his sittings Judge Taylor will proceed to France to be present at the unveiling of Canada's national memorial on Vimy Ridge.

Must Have Certificates

Edmonton.—Certificates of proficiency for Alberta workers in certain designated trades became a requirement under provincial law with publication in the Alberta Gazette of the Tradesmen's Qualification Act passed at the last session of the legislature.

Curtail Trade With Germany

Washing.—German-American trade, already at a record low figure, was further restricted when the United States suddenly imposed additional duties on 10 articles imported from the Nazi state, effective July 11.

Mark Late King's Birthday

Ottawa.—The anniversary of the birth of the late King George V, was marked in this capital by the beating of "Retreat" by massed bugles and brass bands of the Ottawa garrison. This was followed by a concert.

Loyal To Empire

Propaganda Favoring Peace At Any Price Decried By L.O.E.E.

Winnipeg.—Propaganda favoring peace at any cost, "the effect of which would be the severance of the ties which bind Canada to the empire," is decried in a resolution endorsed by the National chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, in annual session here.

The resolution reaffirms loyalty to the empire, pledges support and accepts all responsibilities of empire ties.

The resolution contends "there is being fostered in the Dominion a propaganda, the avowed purpose of which is the avoidance of war at any cost, but the ultimate and inescapable effect of which would be the severance of the ties which bind Canada to the empire."

"It has become apparent that the efforts of the English-speaking peoples of the world to substitute collective security for individual national armed effort in the adjustment of international differences are not being subscribed to by the other nations of the world."

"And because of this fact, it now becomes apparent that those peoples of the world who desire peace and international justice must be prepared to defend those principles by whatever united action becomes necessary."

The resolution reiterates the order's desire that peace be maintained "by every honorable means," but "does heartily hereby accept those national responsibilities which accompany the benefits accruing to Canada from its association within the British Commonwealth of nations, and we do, therefore, now reaffirm our loyalty and pledge our support to the empire."

Use Waste Gas

System To Utilize Gases In Western Canada Now Permitted To Blow Off

Quebec.—Negotiations are now under way to commercialize the gases at present permitted to blow off from Western Canada oil fields, Major General A. G. L. McNaughton, president of the National Research Council, told Canadian Manufacturers' Association in annual convention here.

"We have developed a system," said the president, for manufacturing these gases into carbon black, such as used in the manufacture of motor tires."

He was not prepared to say to what extent the new system would be developed but he expressed the hope it would be able to provide Canada with its own carbon black, of which approximately $1,000,000 worth was imported in the last year.

Storm Halts Expedition

Latest Attempt To Scale Mount Everest Seems Hopeless

Darjeeling, India.—The latest expedition attempting to scale Mount Everest, never conquered by man, was feared doomed to failure when the Alipore observatory reported a strong monsoon raging in the Everest region with no prospects for improvement.

The outlook for the British expedition, led by Hugh Rutledge, is now considered hopeless. It has been dogged by impossible weather conditions from the start.

The party was forced back from its first base camp several weeks ago by intense cold and a storm and later was delayed by another monsoon.

Harmonics For Oil

Newark, N.J.—Forty million harmonics have been acquired by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in payment for shipments of oil to Germany. Walter C. Teagle, president, revealed at the annual stockholders' meeting. This deal was necessitated, he said, because of the German government's prohibition on the exportation of currency.

May Receive Pension

Ottawa.—The federal government is giving "most serious consideration" to granting a pension to the family of John Lewis Sarnia, Ont., policeman killed by "Red" Ryan in a liquor store holdup recently, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, told the House of Commons.

Search For Clues

Seattle.—A Smithsonian Institution expedition sailed for Alaska in search of clues to the origin of the Eskimo and the North American Indian.

Lend Aid To Science

Advance Arguments In Favor Of Scientific Research

Quebec.—Canadian manufacturers were urged to lend every aid to development of scientific research to derive the greatest benefit from its latest disclosures.

Benefits to be derived from this course were outlined to the annual convention of Canadian Manufacturers' Association by L. A. Hawkins, executive engineer in charge of General Electric Research Laboratories at Schenectady, N.Y., and Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, president of the national research council at Ottawa.

Mr. Hawkins, who described research work as essential to an industry as a cost accounting system, said: "If we could produce more and more work less and less, there is no reason why life should not be better than that enjoyed by the people of old Athens who each had at least four slaves."

BATES RETURNS MONEY HE MADE ON INSURANCE

London.—Alfred Bates, advertising executive, and one of three men held guilty by the tribunal which investigated the budget leak, has returned his winnings to the insurance brokers.

Bates had claimed the money in connection with insurances he placed against increased taxes in the budget brought down last April.

Harold Eves, Bates' solicitor and secretary, said a letter had been written to all brokers through whom insurance had been placed informing them although Bates "adheres to the evidence given by him before the budget inquiry tribunal, in view of the report of the tribunal published he has no desire to make a profit out of insurances placed by him."

Bates, last sworn he had received no advance information on the budget. His insurances were a result of his judgment that increased armament expenditures would make an income tax increase inevitable, he testified. In its report, the commission charged Bates with "mistaking and suppressing the truth."

Meanwhile, the central figure in the inquiry, J. H. Thomas, sought seclusion in the country. The former colonial secretary, who resigned during the investigation, must make a decision whether to resign his Derby seat in the House of Commons.

The third man mentioned unfavorably in the report, Sir Alfred Butt, must also consider his position in respect to his seat in the House of Commons. The report held he and Bates used information they obtained from Thomas to insure themselves against increases in tea and income taxes, later announced in the budget.

Bounty For Timber Wolves

Alberta Now Paying Five Dollars Under New Regulations

Edmonton.—Amended regulations published in the Alberta Gazette provide a $5 bounty for timber wolves. Bounty for coyotes in the Cypress Hills forest reserve is set at $2. Cougars killed in April and May are bringing $10, and $20 after June 1.

In addition, pelts are to be sold by the government, and the proceeds, less commission, to be handed to the captors, along with the bounties. Big game licenses for Alberta hunters are advanced from $1 to $2.

RE-ELECTED CANADIAN LEAGUE SOCIETY HEADS

Unfit For Duty

Hon. R. B. Bennett Says Many Judges Should Be Retired

Ottawa.—Many Canadian judges are physically and mentally unfit to give continuous and concentrated attention to their duties, Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, told the House of Commons.

The former prime minister, honorary president of the Canadian Bar Association and a leading lawyer of the west in his earlier days, said there were judges on the high court benches of every province who would not retire on pension although incapacitated to carry on their work.

The house was considering a bill to place federal approval on changes in the Ontario high court made by the province. They involved two new trial judges and the retirement eventually of the chief justice in appeal.

The Conservative leader referred to men in the prisoners' dock, giving their evidence and judges so deaf they could not hear. That, he said, "is a condition that exists at this time in more than one province."

At the same time, Mr. Bennett gave his opinion Canadian judges were under-paid. Hon. C. H. Caban, former secretary of state in the Bennett administration, did not agree with his party chief. The trouble was "lack of moral courage" on the part of successive ministers of justice who could retire provincial high court judges who were incapable of performing their duties.

Bond Issue Quickly Sold

Offering Oversubscribed And Books Closed In Half Day

Ottawa.—Subscription books for the new issue of 30-year 3 1/2 per cent. Dominion government bonds which were opened June 3, were closed the same day at noon, Eastern Daylight Time, with the offering heavily oversubscribed. The issue was limited to $20,000,000 and, selling at 99, will yield approximately 3.30 per cent.

Books for conversions were opened at the same time and will remain open at the discretion of Finance Minister Dunning. The convertible bonds are $40,000,000 at 1 1/2 per cent. due September 15, $30,000,000 at 2 per cent. due October 15, and $70,000,000 at 5 per cent. due November 15.

To Amend Vote

Ottawa.—The House of Commons gave first reading to a bill to amend the Franchise Act, introduced by Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secretary of state. It provides for the appointment of enumerators and the compilation of voters' lists for by-elections.

Stamps Out Evil

Postmaster-General Commanded For Putting Stop To Dismissals

Edmonton.—Postmaster-General Elliott should be lauded "for his effort to stamp out the evil" of wholesale dismissals of postmasters, H. Morgan of Didsbury, Alta., president of the Canadian Postmasters' Association, declared.

In an address to the Alberta branch of the association, of which he is also provincial president, Mr. Morgan said few postmasters had been dismissed since the present federal government took office. He charged that "500 postmasters were let out by his (Mr. Elliott's) predecessor" and that only 50 have been dismissed under Mr. Elliott.

C. D. Griffith, Estevan, Sask., Dominion secretary, said Mr. Elliott had informed him that members of parliament in the past had conveyed whole lists of postmasters they wanted dismissed.

In discussing general problems of postmasters, President Morgan advised against "lucifer" handling of "difficult" members of communities.

Rejects Age Limit Bill

Minister Of Justice Will Not Change Juvenile Delinquents Act

Ottawa.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, justice minister, turned down in the House of Commons, the Church bill to extend the age limit of the juvenile delinquents act from 16 to 19.

F. L. Church (Cons., Toronto-Broadview) sponsor of the bill, said the change was designed to acquaint parents when children were in trouble with the police. They now are acquainted about a child 16 or under.

WOULD DEVELOP GREATER TRADE WITHIN EMPIRE

Quebec.—Canada's sister dominions were pictured as the ground on which she might develop her export trade.

The suggestion was made to delegates to the 65th annual convention of Canadian Manufacturers' Association by representatives of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the British West Indies.

Possibilities of empire trade development also were reviewed by F. W. Field, senior trade commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada and Newfoundland.

From the delegates themselves came advocacy for increased production, increased sales and increased exports. But from Hon. W. D. Ehler, Canadian minister of trade and commerce, came a warning against heavy production when it became a matter of production below costs.

The minister spoke optimistically of conditions in Canada generally, and he urged his listeners to take every advantage offered in foreign markets. He sympathized with manufacturers in certain problems but he blamed them for provoking some of their own difficulties. They were not taking full advantage, for instance, of foreign trade possibilities.

The minister conceded in some cases difficulties were due "perhaps to force of circumstances," but he declared there "can be little justification for continuing production without profit."

In Canada, he continued, there were too many boot and shoe industries, too many newspaper mills and too many furniture factories. In most cases, production was being made below costs.

"I am not advocating any combine," said Mr. Ehler, "but let them get together on this. Let them exercise some co-operation between themselves and show some consideration for each other."

Delegates applauded the suggestion by E. J. Freyseng of Toronto that "the sooner the government puts the unemployed to work and pays them cash, the sooner we will be relieved of our problem of taxation."

The trade commissioners, L. R. Macgregor of Australia, J. W. Collins of New Zealand, D. De Weal Meyer of South Africa, and C. Rex Stillmeyer, of the British West Indies, all urged development of trade with their countries.

They spoke optimistically of future trade relations, which they said were steadily improving, and urged Canadian manufacturers to visit their respective dominions for development of trade both ways.

LEAGUE STRESSES VITAL PROBLEM OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Geneva.—The International Labor conference opened its sessions here by electing C. W. Cramm of Denmark as president. Delegates of 48 countries, including Canada, were present.

Dr. W. A. Riddell, the Dominion's adviser to the League of Nations at Geneva, and chairman of the governing body, hailed the conference as "an opportunity to create in the whole world a sound public opinion in regard to the vital problem of labor and economics."

Dr. Riddell delivered the opening address to the 133 delegates and 236 technical experts. Italy was not represented, her delegates having been withdrawn from Geneva on instructions from Rome.

The Canadian, dean of the diplomatic corps in Geneva, stressed the importance of the report prepared by H. B. Butler, British Economist and a director of the I.O.O.

The report draws a comprehensive picture of the present international crisis and deals particularly with unemployment. Butler set forth the unemployment problem could only be solved through better organization of the world's economic life.

The International Labor office, said Dr. Riddell, is "one of the most important, if not the most important, forum for the solution of problems fundamental to human wellbeing."

Memorial To King George

Premier Baldwin Urges Erection Of Permanent Memorial To Late Sovereign

London.—Prime Minister Baldwin, speaking in an empire-wide broadcast on the birthday of the late King George, appealed for the erection of a permanent memorial to the late sovereign.

He asked the "members of one great family to resolve that long after our voices are still, there shall be some permanent memorial to King George for the service and happiness of future generations—a visible sign of the love of the king's people."

The prime minister commended the two schemes adopted by the committee of the lord mayor of London. The proposed statue between Westminster Abbey and the houses of parliament, Mr. Baldwin said, would be "as beautiful a spot as any in the world when the scheme is completed and a sacred spot for every member of our own great family and also for sailors from America and all over the world."

The second proposal for the construction of children's playing fields throughout the country, "for which there is an increasing need," was praised by the prime minister.

"Land owners can give land. The rich can give wealth," he said, "but I want to see a real offering of the people, a complete realization of all classes of the country, possibly of the empire, that we are all members of one family."

Troops Sent To Palestine

Detachments From British Regiments Have Arrived From Egypt

Jerusalem.—Detachments from the Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire regiments arrived in the Holy Land from Egypt to reinforce the 7,000 British troops already here. Five Jews have been killed during the last 24 hours. The government, moving to outlaw the Arab strike movement, authorized district commissioners to order the reopening of all businesses closed during the strike under pain of heavy penalties.

Says Insurance Rates High

Edmonton.—Fire insurance rates in Western Canada were 30 to 60 per cent. higher than in the east, John Huggard of Winnipeg, charged here in an address at the convention of the Alberta branch of the Canadian Postmasters' Association. He outlined a plan already under way toward formation of a fire insurance company among members to give postmasters a lower premium rate.

Highway Construction Program

St. Paul, Alta.—Employment would be given to 40,000 men when the Alberta government starts its certificate plan in the highway construction program, J. W. Beaudry, Social Credit M.L.A. for Beaver River, stated at a meeting of the St. Paul board of trade. He expected the certificate plan would be put into operation soon.
